Bjuaros the Bold

Once a fierce warrior fighting in the name of Valhalla, Bjuaros was feared. He fought for honor and glory, and he had both. Until one fateful day where he saw a huge flash of light outside of his house. He quickly grabbed his war ax and ran outside to see what was going on. All that was outside was a beautiful baby girl wrapped in a blanket lying peacefully in the snow. As he had picked her up he could sense her Godly energy, and he looked up to the sky to see the most beautiful display of Aurora Borealis he had ever seen. He knew that this girl had to be the daughter of the Gods, who somehow was blessed upon him, and he named her Reginleif accordingly. He now knew that she was more important than honor and glory and that now he had to fight for her. He had to keep her safe. Knowing this he began training her to fight from a very young age, and now in her late teens, the two of them are a fearsome fighting duo.